“ Mr. Carp was my physics and math tutor for 10 years. He was a very nice, kind, and interesting man. When you got to know him you could see he was a very special person.

I lost touch w him after 2008. It is truly sad to hear that he passed. I hope and pray he did not have to suffer. I really enjoyed working w him and I learned a lot from him. Godspeed Mr Carp. Godspeed.

Sincerely,

*I met Larry Carp in 1977 when I was a freshman student at Cornell University. I was very interested in spirituality, and Larry and I talked in detail about many subjects and ideas about life. Just a few days ago, I was thinking about how Larry gave me the book The Nature of Personal Reality by Jane Roberts and how that book was one of the best books anyone could have given me. I lost touch with Larry in the early 80s, but since I was thinking about him, I decided to do an Internet search and I found this obituary. Thank you Larry, for being my friend and for expanding my outlook on the Universe. God bless you, my friend.*
